Colombia and India +60 of Diplomatic Relationship

With the dynamics of the current global market, the CCICI is a connector, facilitator and defender of trade between Colombia and India.
It is a country with great possibilities of development in which advances in security, economic and social development, foreign investment, foreign trade and tourism have played a very important role, attracting the presence of India and its companies.

0.1 Colombia

A country with a strategic geographical location, is the link between countries of North and South America, with coasts on the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, and a market of 45 million inhabitants and an positive economic growth every year. Colombia is a country of the Pacific Alliance and the OCDE.
A subcontinent more than a country, with a potential market 1,300 million people, where everything is still to be done. It has an economic growth of 7.3%. It is a country that innovates in different areas such as BPO, IT, health, cinema, education, textiles among other sectors.

Thanks to its development and growth it becomes an attractive point for the world economies and exports, and for Colombia without any objection, a place to explore business opportunities.

Get to know the Colombia-India Chamber of Commerce and Industry (CCICI)
With the dynamics of the current global market, the CCICI is a connector, facilitator and defender of the trade between our two countries with extraordinary cultural roots that complement each other, providing the necessary links and connections to its members so they can grow in their national and international businesses.

It is for this reason that since September 26, 2008 a group of businessmen, academics, and personalities from Colombia and India, with the support of the Embassy of India, came together to lay the foundation of the Colombia India Chamber of Commerce and Industry, in order to promote and strengthen trade relations between these two countries.

These focuses and strategic approaches have ensured that the CCICI continues to be relevant to satisfy the diverse and changing needs of its members; to communicate and represent the opinions of members before the government and national and international official entities; to link members with the business community; and to connect members with companies that act as potential allies.

The CCICI provides the necessary resources and activities, which allows its members to improve their knowledge, experience and develop skills while doing business. It also defend the views of its members on the appropriate platforms so that these points of view are taken into account during the formulation of policies.

Given its dynamism and foresight, the CCICI will continue to progress and take advantage of its strong and outstanding position in Colombia, being the point of contact chosen by the companies and export councils of India in our country.

¡Bienvenidos!
